The best of times

Kelly Meehan

A TOUCHING MOMENT. Sharing the excitement of a probable win over Cady in the powder puff game, Danielle Morrison congratulates Chris Humphrey for a job well done. Humphrey's two touchdown performance catapulted the win over the Rough Riders which may have been as memorable for the girls' team as the Turkey Day victory was for the guys.

The memories of today and those to come will always be remembered.

Laughing. Dancing. Football games. Mario's. Parties. These are what memories are made of. With each day comes another memory. Kurl DeBellis summed it up best when he said, "I'm making better and better ones each day." In asking the senior class about their best memories of high school, some of the funny responses received are as follows:

"When Mr. Mentzell fell off his chair in history class," said Jim Anthony.

"When Dennis dropped the 'N' in the hopper," stated Matthew Heiny.

"Motorcycle races in Mr. Pail's world geography class," said Scott Bartholomew.

"Kathy and I being late to biology and pulling off Mrs. Miller's door knob," said Jennifer Doll.

"Rating the girls in study hall," stated Stephen Ehritz.

"Ah, gee...they're all so bad it's hard to pick just one," stated Randy Lichtenwalner.

"Meaningful analyzations with Brotha' Numpsey," said Stephen Bauer.

"Getting an A+ in hall walking with Denise, Kim, Karen, and Heather," said Christina Bundy.

"When Eric Hansen's locker burned to a crisp," said John Wunderler.

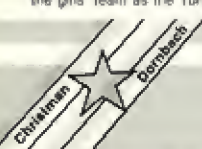

"Girls, what else could one remember," stated Mark Geyer.

"It's faded," said Eric Gleske.

"Breaking beds and stealing the pillows at a motel," stated William Evans.

"Being a high-class call girl in the musical 'Working'," said Stephanie Keller.

Rivalry conquers Catty

Powder puff team scores three touchdowns to defeat the Rough Riders.

It's first and goal. The quarterback receives the signal from the sidelines. Hut 1, hut 2, hike! The ball is flicked back, it's in the quarterback's hands and tossed to the running back who breaks away for the touchdown. The crowd goes wild as Chris Humphrey comes sprinting back to the sidelines in the powder puff game against Catty.

"I'm glad that I got to help our team achieve the first victory over Catty in a long time," stated Humphrey.

A major factor in the girls' 18-6 victory over Catasauqua was the ever-present rivalry between the schools.

"When we walked out on the field, you could feel the tension between us," said Charin Jacoby.

"It was a very intense game. All the players were wrapped up in the rivalry. I think that's what helped them to win the game," said Catty Rough Rider Chris Synder.

Diane Meckes, one of the two coaches, used the rivalry between Northampton and Catty to psych the girls.

"Miss Meckes was what you could call our motivator. She gave the girls a couple of pep talks before and during the game. Stated coach Debra Krause

Kim Erceg

Kelly Marthen

THE LONG RUN Maneuvering between oncoming Catty defenders, running back Heidi Keglovits puts her legs into high gear and moves toward a possible K-Kid score. Although Keglovits was stopped short of a touchdown, her impressive run put the powder puff in scoring position. The team took advantage of the opportunity and scored in the next play.

What do you do on a boring Saturday night besides blistering your feet walking around the mall? Well, if bowling is not your bag and your car's cruising mileage is limited due to lack of funds, the movies provide a relatively inexpensive getaway from the "harsh" faces of reality.

"The cinemas are great. It's the only place to go when there is nothing to do and you don't feel like shopping," said Toni Stumpf.

Patrick Swayze and Jennifer Grey drew the crowds in their outstanding performance in Dirty Dancing. Top Gun soared into the hearts of millions with the hunk Tom Cruise portraying "Maverick", a hot-shot Navy fighter pilot who falls in love with co-star Kelli McGillis. Other box office favorites include the realistic suspense film Fatal Attraction and the adventurous cop-drama, Lethal Weapon, which starred Mel Gibson and his partner Danny Glover.

"Right now I'd have to say my favorite movie is Top Gun, but with all the new movies coming out, I'll probably have a new favorite by next week," stated Lani Uhl.

TAKING A BREAK. Passing the time at the end of 7th period class, Michelle DeLong and Jenny Doll get together to discuss some gossip. After graduation all the horrible thoughts of tests and homework will be forgotten and the best memories of high school will be of times just sitting around and laughing with friends.

High school wasn't easy. Practices and cramming for exams were rough, but winning the big game and getting that A+ you never thought possible made it a little better. Looking back, there were quite a few moments and people that made high school almost bearable. When Amp-tennian asked seniors what they remember most about high school they replied as follows:

"Beating P-burg to tie for the EPC wrestling champs," stated Jarrid Konya.

"Receiving a long stem red rose from Tammy," stated Joe Siekonic.

"Mr. Davis' smiling face fifth period everyday," stated Deana Angstadt.

"Getting psyched up just to lose another soccer game," stated Michael Jenkins.

"Band," stated Jamie DeLong.

"Playing basketball with the best team and coaches you could possibly have," said John Burits.

"My friends made high school special," stated Becky Bonasklewich.

"Spending my senior year with Cathy, my brother and my friends," said Michael Bodnar.

"The memory I have was in 10th grade, the first day I walked into a public school," stated Angelic Sommers.

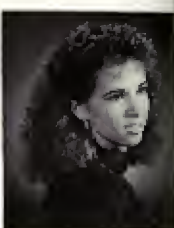

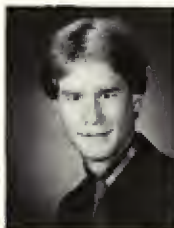

"The best times I'll always remember are with Kim Skeebe and Brad and Keith in the Toyota, I'll never forget Alfie, my pitbull, and bite marks on tree limbs," said Ron Rapee.

"All my teachers who helped me with a lot -- especially Mr. Bryant," said Amy Jo Andrews.

New styles, same ideals

Improvements have been made to class rings throughout the years.

like the smaller, petite style ring. It looks much better on my hand," stated
Jodi Sikorsky

"The bigger style ring looks good on guys. Not many girls wear this type. I like it a lot," stated Doug Oberly.

"The dioner ring doesn't look right on me. I like the medium size kind. It shows off
better on my hand," stated

Tina Petrisky.

Imagine everyone having to wear the same style class ring. This was the case for students years ago. As time progressed, various improvements were made because of competition between different dealers. As a result, individuals can now choose from many different styles, stones, facets, emblems, and sizes.

"I'm glad we can pick any kind of ring we want. I would die if I had to wear the ones like my parents had," stated Erika Grabner.

Although styles of class rings have changed the tradition of wearing your boyfriend's ring has remained the same.

"Wearing my boyfriend's ring shows that we are going out and keeps all other interested guys away," stated Deb Ortwein.

"In years to come my class ring will help me remember the great times my friends and I shared," said
Keri Woodring.

CLASS OF '88. Showing off her new class ring to some of her friends, Toni Stumpf knows that although it was an expensive investment, it is something she can keep forever. Due to the wide variety of engravings, class rings symbolize the most remembered activities of high school. The fact that they come in many styles makes them even more appealing to students.

So where this weekend?

The fast food places offer people of the Valley many choices.

So guys, where are we gonna eat tonight?"

This question plagues teenagers every weekend. The answer depends on the individual. Many factors determine their choice.

The food tends to be the most important reason. Here in the Lehigh Valley your appetite can easily be satisfied by the large variety of fast food, ranging from "flame broiled" burgers to "kennucky fried" chicken.

"I know whatever I'm hungry for I can find," said Andrea Peck.

These quick stop pit-stops also serve their food quickly, hence the term "fast food". The man who does not have the time for a sit down meal has a chance to grab a quick sandwich.

"When I'm late for work and haven't had anything to eat, the drive-thru really comes in handy," said Erika Madea.

The companionship also contributes to the decision. The fast food places turn into the town hangout on the weekends.

"I like to go to a place where I can sit down with all my friends," said Carmen Giovenco.

The fast food restaurants offer a wide variety of interests for all people. The choice of where to go is still up to the individual.

BUILDING MEMORIES At Vo-Tech, Scott Hein builds a wall to be used for landscaping homes. Studying masonry not only gave Hein very special memories of him and his friends, but also gave him hands-on experience in his field. Vo-Tech also offers co-op program to give students a taste of reality in their career.

Being at Vo-tech for half of the day gives students an opportunity to prepare themselves for the working world and allows them to become friends with kids from other schools. The times spent with these friends produces special memories. When asked about their best memories, Vo-tech senior replied as follows.

"My fondest memories are of the Annex with Marock and journeys in the Atlas with the third ward," Andrew Madea III.

"Getting busted for knocking down the tracks by two kids for supposedly knocking," said Ed Marakovits.

"I'll always remember the great times at Tech and all the excursions we had going to cosmology," said Dennis Aquila.

"Great times at Vo-tech. We are like a big family," stated Wendy Marie DeLong.

"Best of times at Tech. Thanks to my friends for the laughs and making this my best year ever," said Theresa Fasching.

Being between two schools, tech students' memories are far from dull.

"Sleeping," stated Chris Odenwelder.

"It's all a blur," said Greg Porkorny.

"Getting crazy in all my classes with all my friends and driving the teachers insane," said Vincent Fegley.

"Getting in as much trouble as possible with the guys from tech," said Tom Lacko.

"Gable vs. Landis at tech," stated Diane Silfies.

"It was just like being in the clink," said Mark Rex.

"The times spent with my girlfriend Michelle," stated Keith Reiss.

"Goofing around in the tech lot with Todd, Kathy, Alex, and Jeff," said Brian Hugo.

Wild once again

Students bring back the spirit to give the Kids
an extra boost to win.

The bunch is back! In years past the Wild Bunch has faded in and out. This year it was restarted by Greg Serensits, Matt Reinhard, and Pat Rissmiller. The Wild Bunch supports the Northampton basketball team at their games. They do anything from screaming "Go orange go" to banging on the bleachers to distract the opposing team from making a foul shot, often getting yelled at by the referees.

"The Wild Bunch represents the pride we have for our school," said Serensits.

The club began when Serensits had students sign up to purchase Wild Bunch t-shirts.

"We knew the return of the Wild Bunch would be a success when 90 kids signed up. We didn't expect that much support," said Reinhard.

Along with the yelling and screaming, the Wild Bunch shows even more spirit by dressing up for each game. They either wear the opposing teams colors or an array of strange clothing.

"Dressing up is a tradition and it helps to psych the team up," said Rissmiller.

"I always feel like a different person. The wild side of me comes out at the games," said Michelle Schramel.

Nicole Nicrome

Cecelia Green

THE CROWD GOES WILD Cheering Jim Fromartz on to scoring his 1000th point, members of the Wild Bunch join in the celebration of the memorable event. In addition to spurring the Kids on to numerous victories, the Bunch also makes its presence felt at Northampton basketball games by aggravating the opponents and annoying the referees.

A new era in music

Heavy metal groups win at the Grammys and have control over charts.

When Bon Jovi won the most popular rock group at the Grammy's, a new age in popular music emerged. No longer would heavy metal bands be treated as if they weren't musicians. Heavy metal bands are more popular than ever from such groups as Whitesnake, Motley Crue, and Van Halen.

The heavy metal bands have an image all their own. This image is what attracts and captures their fans.

"I like Kiss because every band today owes something to them in terms of music or image," stated Terry Anthony.

Their style of music is unlike anything else in the music industry. It is this style of music that people listen to to mentally prepare themselves before sports events or just to remember the past.

"Van Halen's music reminds me of the great times I had with Mike Nemeth on the varsity swim team," said Dennis Heffelfinger.

Pop music is not dead. Pop groups are still popular with singers and groups such as Whitney Houston, U2, George Michael, and Madonna.

"I love Whitney Houston's style of music," stated Nadine Heafner.

FINDING JUST ENOUGH TIME. Between rushing from class to class in order to beat the bell, Brian Grenoble, Jeff Grube, Rich Hefelinger and Mark Hallock take advantage of the extra time to exchange the latest gossip and have a little fun before heading back to the books.

Everyone has his or her own special memories of high school. To some, a certain teacher or coach, a friend, or a particular day is what they will remember of high school. For the exchange students, every day at NHS was an unforgettable memory.

Senior year will be remembered as one year, one memory and one vision.

"The first day at a new school meeting new friends, Field hockey--trying to play this new sport. All my classes and enjoying it all," stated Bolivian exchange student Jacqueline Vargas Murga.

"Friday nights pigging out at Chi-Chi's with my long time friends Kath and Steph," said Ellen Kosciolok.

"Being a part of the best wrestling team in the area," said Jason Fogel.

"Mrs. Belcher's 11th grade English class where I first got to know Mike," stated Cathy Herschman.

"Mr. Bryant's homeroom was always the greatest," stated Bryan Geesey.

"This is a great year and experience for me. I thank all of you who helped me to let it be like this, I will never forget you," said German exchange student Antje Drucke.

"Being here with the four outstanding teachers in the senior high. And I want to say thanks Mom and Dad, I did it," stated Lisa Flamish.

"My whole year here," said Swedish exchange student Samantha Svenson.

"My experience in 'crazy USA' is fantastic. NHS is a great school, excellent teachers and classmates but terrible food," stated Santiago Moran, exchange student from Ecuador.

An uncontrollable disease

You don't know exactly when it will strike, it just sneaks up on you.

As soon as I walked in the door after school I laid down on the sofa and slept until dinner time. Then I went shopping and to a friend's house. When I finally got home, I was too tired to do my homework so I went to bed. Because of the way I've been acting lately, my mom made an appointment for me. After a check up, the doctor explained to me that I have a common disease contracted by seniors -- "senioritis".

"I acquired the disease the first day of school, and I won't be cured until the last," said Kristin Steier.

The most obvious symptoms of this disease include sleeping more than usual, partying, skipping classes, or staying home from school to catch up on your "soaps".

"Although I haven't felt any of the symptoms yet, I'm sure as soon as the first day of spring arrives I'll feel the full affect," said Keri Woodring.

The full affects of the disease hit the hardest in the spring since the weather is getting warmer and there are many outside activities you would rather be doing.

Since this disease is unavoidable among seniors, everyone must take the illness day by day and if it overcomes you, just go with it.

The doctor's advice to every senior is "take two aspirin and call me after graduation."

Kathy Spenger

Kelly Merchan

BREAKING AWAY: Stricken by the dreaded disease "senioritis", Sarah Stromwell and Sherry Recek are more than ready to ditch this school, and make a break for the outside world. As spring draws near, more and more seniors find themselves with symptoms such as skipping school, cutting class, and making excuses for not doing homework or studying. The only known cure is graduating in June.

Sand and sun equals fun.

Vacationing gives one a chance to get away from the everyday blahs of life.

School's out. The summer's begun. It's time to party and have lots of fun.

There are many different places to go on vacation, but some of the hottest spots are Florida, Wildwood, and Ocean City. These are the best places to bake on the beach, swim in the ocean, or take a walk along the beach with the person of your dreams.

"Ocean City, Maryland, is one of the most happenin' places around. The sun, beach, and guys definitely rule," said Meredith McClellan.

"Wildwood is the best. The beach and women are terrific," said Shawn Rogan.

For a change from the East Coast beaches, some people visit the exotic and secluded islands of Hawaii, Cancun, and Acapulco. With their clear blue water, and colorful coral reefs, the beaches there resemble scenes right out of National Geographic.

"Acapulco is one of the best vacation spots around. You feel like you're in Hollywood because everyone waits on you and there are plenty of palm trees," said Kim Cruz.

For many the closest they come to a vacation is a long weekend away from the everyday routine of life.

Michelle Schramel

SAVAGE TAN. Relaxing on the deck of their hotel, Kim Cruz soaks up the sun with a guy she met. Also on the trip to Acapulco, Mexico were friends Staci Dimler and Kim Erceg. Not only did the girls go to countless parties and spend numerous hours on the beach, but they also met tons of gorgeous guys and created memories that will last a life time.

Out of 285 polled the survey says our favorite vacation spots are:

Florida 31%

Wildwood 30%

Hawaii 18%

Ocean City 8%

Getting through with fun

Lon Rice

SIDE BY SIDE To many students the only time to feel relaxed and talk to your friends is during the lunch periods. Besides using these 35 minutes to eat, George Angelica and Tim O'Donnell try to catch up on the morning events and activities. During this time, cafeteria aids try to keep wild behavior to a minimum.

Causing trouble and having fun are a big part of everyone's senior year.

The crazy things we pulled in high school will always be remembered--spit-balls in studyhall, being late for class, and driving the substitutes crazy. They are what made the days go by faster. The following responses from seniors give a brief description of some their best times at NHS.

"Singing, 'I'd like to buy the world a home,'" said Karen Reimer.

"Christening the Catholic school grounds as I was fixing a flat tire with my friend Bud Weiser," stated Deb Seltzer.

"Getting thrown over desks by Mr. Gilly," said Tim Brearman.

"Four-wheeling in the Atlas mod with all my friends from school," stated Mike Galler.

"German class and the 'Row of Death' and the trip to Allentown," said Heath Moser.

"When my friends pushed someone down the stairway in a rolling garbage can on the last day of school," stated Ken Jones.

"Going out to lunch and baseball," stated Carl Cavallo

"Laughing hysterically in the halls with my best friend Becky and all the great times at drama practices," stated Nadine Heelner.

"A.A.A.-because my car broke down a lot with my best friend with me," stated Bill Seko.

"Play practices and opening nights. Mr. P's data class," stated Angelic Spess.

"Summer practice--it was hard, but I had a lot of fun," said Kirk Markell.

Looking toward the future

As the end draws near,
seniors prepare for the big day.

Y our senior year has arrived. You've counted the months, weeks, and days until the big moment—graduation.

Seniors first faced graduation preparations when they had their senior pictures taken.

"I spent hours getting ready for my senior picture. I wanted them to turn out great," stated Colleen Urban.

In early November seniors were measured for caps and gowns. While the measurements took only a few minutes, many seniors purchased their long-awaited 1988 orange and black tassels.

"I couldn't wait to get my tassel because I wanted to put it in my car where everyone could see it," said Shannon Dye.

An assembly was held by Student Services for seniors to order graduation announcements.

"The announcements were a good way to let my family and friends know I've made it," stated Jane Stubits.

A senior group portrait was taken in January by Aardvark Studio. The entire senior class met in the gym to have both a formal and funny picture taken.

"The senior portrait is nice to have because you can remember everyone you've gone to school with," said Lisa Kern.

Elin Kosciok

Kelly Merchen

MAKING A MEMORY. After being measured for the cap and gown he will wear on graduation day, Stephen Hidenbrandt purchases an orange and black tassel which commemorates the year in which he will graduate. The tassels, which were sold for $2.50 each, were an inexpensive way for seniors to pay tribute to June of 1988.

Nowhere to go

Where to go on a date doesn't have to be a problem anymore.

It's Friday and you've got a date with the best catch in the school. The pimple on your chin that stuck out like a mountain has disappeared and your parents are letting you borrow the car. Everything seems to be going fine until your date gets in the car, and you realize that you have no plans for the evening. What are you going to do?

Some teens think picking a place to go on a date is a simple task but actually it requires a certain amount of thought. First you have to determine what kind of disposition out date has and from there you can decide where to go.

"I usually ask the girl where she wants to go since that's who I'm trying to please," Greg Serensits.

Pleasing a date is not always easy; many times it depends on where they feel most comfortable. A person who is outgoing enjoys excitement and would prefer a party or a dance. A shy, reserved person would prefer dinner and a movie.

"I feel more comfortable taking a date I don't really know to the movies because there aren't a lot of people around, and I can get to know my date better," stated Doug Oberly.

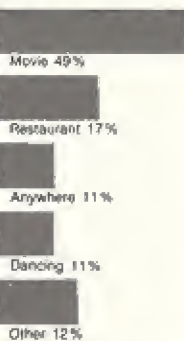

Steph Harhart

Katy Merchen

NOW SHOWING Long time friends Randy Lichtenwalner and Amy Minnich spend a night out on the town by catching the latest "attraction" at the local movie theater. Seniors voted this popular pastime their favorite thing to do on a date. The movies provide a comfortable environment in which a person can take a break from the real world.

Whose life is it?

Kelly Meichen

EXPLORING THE ISSUES: Director of the pregnancy program at NHS, Marcy Vogel teaches her students about problems they may encounter during their pregnancies, and choices they have regarding their babies. One of the most prominent and controversial topics discussed in the class is abortion.

Think for a minute of what visual image first comes to your mind when you hear the word abortion. Do you picture an unborn baby or do you see an image of a pregnant woman? Everyone has a concern for human life, and either way you answer the question, the topic always leads to a life. The problem is which life--the potential life of the fetus or the actual life of a woman facing the problem of and unwanted pregnancy?

"As soon as I heard that I was going to be a mother, I knew I wanted to keep the baby no matter what the consequences," stated Jen Dobler.

Pregnancy deserves a decision based on the concern for life, not only the mothers but also the quality of life the future child would lead.

"My heart goes out to any girl who is faced with motherhood at such a young age," said nurse Hildegard Bradney.

No one celebrates the event of an unwanted pregnancy. Teenagers feel forced into having abortions due to their unwillingness to bring a life into the world which they cannot care for. Nearly 440,000 teens terminate pregnancies through abortions each year.

"Every women has the right to make her own decisions regarding pregnancy. I view it as a problem, though, when an abortion is used as a way out," stated Rosemary Engler.

PROS AND CONS. Knowing they may have tough times ahead of them, Laurie Whitemaine-Drey and Jennifer Dobler discuss the effects pregnancy has had on their lives. Both girls have decided to keep their babies, but this is not the decision all teens make. Other alternatives include abortion or adoption.

About one million American teenagers become pregnant every year. Rich or poor, black or white, many enter the same world of fear, anger, and low self-esteem. Being told in a few short word, that you are indeed pregnant can alter a life.

"I wasn't really scared or angry, just confused on how it would effect my life," said Lauri Whitemaine-Drey. Pregnancy is a time that brings about emotional problems. Feelings change constantly, education is interrupted, friends may become isolated, and financial problems arise.

"Every person and situation is different. It's an unpredictable nine month adventure that brings about changes in the body and life in general," said Rosemary Engler.

A problem is that information on pregnancy comes from friends who are just as confused as you are. It's important to talk to someone who can help you make the right decisions.

"High school students experience difficulties in handling the responsibility of raising a child and isn't ready for a committed relationship," said Hildegard Bradney.

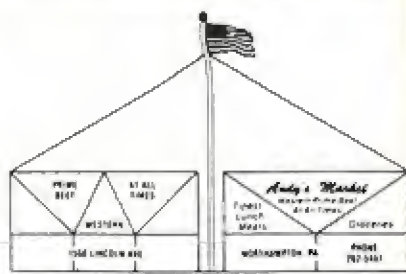

Pregnant students may confront rejection or humiliating comments if they continue school. Some students who make the commitment to attend school drop out because taking classes and being pregnant is too much.

NO TIME TO PLAY. The Drug and Alcohol Task Force is a school oriented program for students who are willing to speak and represent the school in a manner without drugs and alcohol. Amy Gubich, a member of the Task Force, writes down information concerning their next speaking program.

Over half the teenagers treated for alcohol or drug abuse started their habit by the age of 12 or 13. Sixty percent of these teens reported that someone else at home also abuses drugs or alcohol. Ninety-two percent of all seniors have had experiences with alcohol. Statistics like these show how the abuse of drugs have been on the rise.

"Every type of student uses alcohol because of its easy availability," said Ann Gillette.

Everyone has to make their own decision whether or not to use drugs. Although consequences and risks are high enough to make most think twice, many still choose to abuse drugs.

"I don't like to see teens destroy their lives by abusing drugs," said Dan Howard.

The Drug and Alcohol Task Force helps students understand how dangerous drugs are and the effect they have on the body.

"Students are told about the serious problems that can result from abusing drugs," said Howard.

Teenagers are at high risks because of curiosity, their love for risks, tendency to rebel, and most of all to be accepted by their peers.

"The need to assert their independence seems to be a reason for the drug use problem," stated health teacher Joan Kremus.

Teenagers who continue to abuse drugs run a higher risk for suicide.

HEAVEN HELP US. Reading about the scandal that unfolded around T.V. evangelists Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker, Drew Powell finds the pictures better than the actual story. Although not even close to the best-seller list, the amusing tale of the ex-PTL members kept readers entertained throughout the summer and fall.

The summer of 1987 produced a intriguing and hilarious, story of money, controversy, and the crumbling of an empire. This, of course, is the story of Jim and Tammy Bakker.

For more than twenty years Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker held a firm grasp on the television evangelist industry. It all came crumbling down when allegations of a relationship with Jessica Hahn forced him to give up his ministry. More allegations followed. Bakker denied accusations that he was a homosexual and that he and Tammy Faye took part in wife swapping.

While watching the news, hardly a night would go by without seeing a weeping Tammy Faye describing what they had lost. They lost their house in Palm Springs and everything with it. Everyone felt sorry for them.

"She cries too much, but I can understand it, they lost everything," said Don Kocher.

Don't feel sorry for the Bakker's, because the "Jim and Tammy Show" was a goldmine. From their show they received a $1.1 million annual salary, four homes, a Mercedes Benz, a Rolls Royce and a luxurious wardrobe for Tammy.

Many of Bakker's old competitors figured he would come back and he did. It got off to a rocky start and continued that way.

"SKINNED" ALIVE Supporting his team after the victory over the Denver Broncos, Malt Marino shows off his t-shirt to Kevin Smith. The Redskins won with a 42-10 lead over the Broncos. Washington broke many records throughout the course of the game, one of which was broken when they scored four touchdowns in the second quarter.

"The way the first quarter went I thought Denver was going to win. I was rooting for them," said Steve Miletics.

The first quarter ended with the score 10-0 in Denver's favor. What followed in the second quarter was something that was beyond comprehension and by the time it was over, the game itself was over.

It started with an 80-yard touchdown strike from Doug Williams to Ricky Sanders. The next score came when Redskins receiver Gary Clark was open for a 27-yard score. Timmy Smith followed up this score with a 58-yard touchdown run. Two more touchdown passes by Williams made the score 35-10 at halftime. The Redskins went on to win 42-10.

Matt Reinhard

A game of such epic proportions as the Super Bowl rarely lives up to the mounds of hype placed on it. Super Bowl XXII was no different...for a while at least.

The second annual game pitted the AFC Champion Denver Broncos against the NFC Washington Redskins. The Broncos were four point favorites going into the game.

Boom! The game started out like a string of firecrackers on the Fourth of July. Broncos quarterback John Elway threw a 56-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Ricky Nattiel 1:57 into the contest. This was the quickest touchdown ever in Super Bowl history.

Black Monday

Lori Rice

SHOCKING NEWS FOR THE BUSINESS MAN When Bill Seko opened the Time magazine from the week of October 19, 1987, he was surprised to discover the story behind the stockmarket crash. Everything from the fall of the Dow Jones industrial average to the statements made by businessmen and by the President was covered in the fourteen page story.

By the time the 4 p.m. closing bell rang at the New York Stock Exchange on October 19, 1987, the day instantly became known as Black Monday. The Dow Jones industrial average had plunged 508 points or an incredible 22.6 percent and an astonishing $385 billion on paper was lost.

"Half the nation became paralyzed with curiosity and concern after hearing the news of the crash," stated Robert Sawarynski.

Many Americans felt their life's work and savings endangered. Though only one in five households invest directly in the stock market, the crash effected everyone.

People who never bought stocks before were trying to figure out what the cruise down Wall Street meant to them and their security.

"My parents weren't directly concerned with the crash, but they worried about later effects on prices," said Kelly Crowell.

Businesses worried that consumers might stop spending as freely. Workers feared that a market collapse could cause a recession. Those close to retirement were concerned with the effect on pension funds and on investments that they would soon have to rely on for income.

"I don't think the stock market crash had a great impact on students, but I know many worried about a rise in college tuitions," said Jodi Sikorsky.

Uprising in the gulf

Lon Rice

ON TOP OF THE SUBJECT. Discussing the Iran-Contra issue, government teacher Ronald Reed explains major ideas to Steve Hashar. Reed locates the location and provides information on the hearings.

For the past 40 years, American warships have been defending the Persian Gulf, symbolizing and maintaining the nation's role as a global power.

In the last year, the U.S. involvement in the Persian Gulf has become more pronounced. The U.S. has agreed to provide convoy protection to eleven Kuwaiti oil tankers in the Gulf. In the process, the U.S. is finding itself involved in a seven year struggle between Iran and Iraq. Unfortunately, instead of discouraging further Iranian attacks, the U.S. might have become involved in a nightmare.

"I think when we first sent troops into the Gulf, there was a major threat imposed by the Iranians. Now everyone has accepted our presence and for now there is no threat of violence," said teacher Victor Willis.

Although the US involvement in the Gulf seems to be successful, it was at the cost of some soldier's lives. Of the 15,000 sailors stationed in the Gulf, 37 lost their lives when the USS Stark was accidentally attacked by Iraqi missiles.

With the tragedy of lost lives, one question still remains. "Is it necessary for US troops to be stationed in the Persian Gulf?"

WHERE STUDENTS STAND: A controversial article concerning Supreme Court Justice nominee Robert Bork grabs senior Tina Pritchard's attention as she studies the latest current events for teacher Dave Zehner's government class. Bork, Reagan's first choice, was rejected due to his overly conservative opinions.

With President Reagan's third turn at bat, he has finally hit a home run on nominating Anthony Kennedy for the 104th Supreme Court Justice. His first two failures were in electing Robert Bork and Douglas Ginsburg.

Kennedy was the only nominee to not have a scandal connected with his name. Kennedy with his "Norman Rockwell" background, has spent 12 years on the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in Sacramento, California. His opinions and decisions are respected throughout the judicial system.

Bork is an extreme conservative. Bork argues that he is a fair, open-minded jurist who represents 30 years of social activism in court. His adversaries contend that he is a right-wing radical whose opinions threaten basic principles of social justice and individual liberties.

"Both Bork and Reagan are ultra-conservative and Reagan nominated Bork to continue to have conservative ideas throughout the system," said social studies teacher Jim Pail.

Ginsburg is a liberal. He unexpectedly withdrew his nomination after background research revealed using marijuana in the sixties.

"I guess you never realize how things you do when you are young effect you when you are older," said Phil Kresge.

History brought to life

WELL INFORMED YOUTH Congressman Don Ritter not only spoke about the Constitution, but also gave Jen Karmonick, Steve Bauer, Matt Zerphy and Steve Roosa the opportunity to put it into action as he presented his "Congressman in the Schools" program to government classes.

Government students took a stroll down memory lane with Congressman Don Ritter as he made 200 years of history come alive in one class period. With his "Congressman in the Schools" campaign, Ritter strived to have students understand and appreciate the US constitution, a document that united our country and molded it into the great nation it is today.

"The Constitution is so crucial to the lives of all Americans, and it is not nearly as understood as it should be," said Ritter.

To further explain our government and how it works, Ritter initiated a debate, much like that held in the House of Representatives. The topic was chosen by the students and concerned United States involvement in the Persian Gulf. Students presented their views and opinions to support both the pros and cons of having American troops in the Middle East. More students favored than opposed the involvement of US troops in the Persian Gulf.

"The debate was interesting and Congressman Ritter enlightened us on a subject that I knew only a little bit about. By stating the foreign policy and the US responsibility in maintaining world peace, I was able to better understand our reasoning for being in the Gulf," said Marianne Peckham.

No smoking, please

Caroline Green

SURGEON GENERAL. Hanging out with his friends over the lunch period, Leon Gable tries to light up a cigarette before being seen by liaison, Terik Haddad. Even though smoking is not permitted at Northampton, you can find traces in any bathroom you walk into. There are many serious side effects related to habitual nicotine use.

Each year cigarette smoking causes the deaths of more than 300,000 Americans, principally from heart disease, cancer, and chronic obstructive lung disease. In order to help lower this number, the school has banned smoking within the school building.

"Banning smoking was the greatest thing to do. At least now I don't have to worry about walking out of the bathroom smelling like an ashtray," stated Heather Kratzer.

Some people tend to differ with the non-smoking policy, feeling that they should be able to smoke if they want.

"I really didn't think it was fair to ban smoking, I'm the one that's smoking. I'm the one who will get sick, so what does it matter to anyone else," stated Tim Hunsberger.

As a result of the smoking policy, many teachers and students have turned away from trying to smoke in school, and some are determined to quit smoking for good.

"I've been trying to quit smoking for awhile. With the new policy in effect, I decided just to stop for good," stated Andrea Peck.

"I'm really glad that the smoking policy has been changed. I hope now that people realize how hazardous smoking can be, not only to themselves, but also to others around them," stated Amy Kravetz.

AIDS policy to protect

Carlene Green

NECESSARY KNOWLEDGE Concerned about the recent AIDS epidemic, Kurt DeBelle and Nina Shoenthal read a pamphlet containing information about related sexually transmitted diseases.

Because of the fear of AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome), Northampton High School has put together an AIDS policy to protect the victim and the students within the school.

This new policy is never exactly the same because it changes according to the needs of the victim. It also gives some insight on the disease, and informs others not to fear the victim.

"The AIDS policy helps the victim accept his disease and also helps friends and family as well. The biggest fear of most people, is that they feel that by just being next to the AIDS carrier, they can get the disease. This is a fallacy. One should just act natural, as hard as that may be," stated Hildegard Bradney.

Most young people with AIDS are permitted to attend school, but due to the ignorance of society, they are shunned by their peers. Because of the fact that AIDS can not be contracted by casual contact, there is no reason why he/she should not be treated like any other person.

"Even if a student did have the AIDS virus, I don't feel that they should be denied the right to have a 'normal' education," stated Mike McGillis.

HISTORY IN THE MAKING. Republican presidential candidates Pete Dupont and Pat Robertson make a showing in the New Hampshire primaries. The primaries, which were designed to determine the front-runners, are held each year in every state. The primaries help voters make choices regarding the candidates.

On November 4, 1988, a new President of the United States will be voted in. This will be decided by the voters of America 18 years of age and over.

Being able to vote for a president of a club or for the President of the U.S. is a major choice. The person chosen will be in charge of all the activities and must be a strong leader.

"I respect anyone who would run for president or an office. This year I'll be 18 so I'll be able to vote for who I want to run the country," stated Bill Horn.

The U.S. government is run democratically just like our class offices and student council. When running for office, a campaign must be set up to help get people on the nominees side.

"Running for a class office reminds me of the presidential campaign. Always trying to have people on your side, thinking of a catchy slogan and most important is making sure you stand for the same thing that your supporters want you to," stated senior class president, Mike Jenkins.

For some the presidential election doesn't mean a thing. All it is is just another year where people get all riled up over who is the best candidate and who will be the best leader.

CONSTITUTIONAL MATTERS: Knowing one of their articles may cause a stir among the student body, the Courier editors meet with principal Frank Kovacs to discuss whether the story can be run. Due to the new Supreme Court ruling, principals have the right to censor controversial issues from school publications.

In the Bill of Rights, the first Amendment gives the freedom of speech and the freedom of press, but recently that was somewhat changed.

The Supreme Court ruled that the principal of a school has the right to censor articles published by the school's newspaper if he feels that the articles may be inappropriate for the students to read.

"I have never had a real problem with any articles published in our school paper. I feel the staff has picked very strong stories and I'm sure I won't have to worry about controversial one," stated principal Frank Kovacs.

the Concrete Courier decided not to print an article dealing with a drug bust, for fear it would cause problems with those involved.

"The article would have been a great news article to inform the student body. And now with the new ruling, I'm sure Courier could have gotten in a lot of trouble," stated editor Mike Ruth.

Now that the principal is allowed to censor all articles published, the staff members must be more careful in desiring what should and what should not be printed.

"The staff has to work together to decide what we can print to make sure it won't offend anyone," said Robbin Hunsberger.

An American hero?

Caroline Green

GO OLLIE! Chris Chandler and Matt Bauer show who they would cast their votes for in the upcoming election. North won respect as he took the stand and defended his actions to the population.

The Iran-Contra hearings were perhaps the sorriest event in America since Watergate. The country was in turmoil, and the president did not know what was going on. Through all the muck the hearings made one man emerge, Lieutenant Colonel Oliver North.

The hearings were rather boring at the start but as the month of August rolled around, insiders predicted the proceedings would heat up along with the summer.

As Oliver North took the stand, a wave of flashbulbs and clicks went off. Senator John Nields questioned North first. He concentrated his questions on the shredding of documents related to the case.

"He looked confident as he took the stand, as if he knew everything," stated Greg Serensits.

The funny thing is, North did know everything. He and his lawyer Brenden Sullivan deflected the counsels questions one after another.

Then it happened. "Olliemania" spread around the nation from the Ollie North haircut to the "Ollie North for President".

But does North deserve the title "American hero" given to him by President Reagan?

"I think Oliver North did what he had to do. He is an American hero," stated John Burits.

Tragedy on ice

Kelly Marchen

SIGN OF SORROW: Dan Jansen was considered a top contender in speed skating at the Olympics. On the day of Jansen's 500-meter race, tragedy struck when, after hearing of his sister Jane's death he fell.

Only the best athletes make it to the Olympics. Speed skater Dan Jansen was there to do and become the best.

At the 1988 Winter Olympics, Jansen became a top American contender. He had finished fourth at Sarajevo and came in second at the 1986 World Sprint Championships. This was his year. Not only did he want to win for himself, but for his favorite sister Jane who was diagnosed with leukemia.

On the morning of February 14, Jansen received a phone call with news that Jane had died. Jansen stayed to skate that night for her.

At the starting line, Jansen made a false start. Then the unexpected happened. Jansen slid and landed in the mats. He stood up, his hands over his head, in disbelief.

Thursday night was Jansen's last chance for a medal. In the 1000-meter race he passed 600 meters in 44.02 seconds, the fastest of the first eight skaters. Then, passing the 800-meter mark, approaching the final turn, Jansen hit his blade and fell again.

Teammate Eric Flaim dedicated his medal to Dan and Jane.

His story has touched the hearts of many Americans. For Dan Jansen it was not meant to be.

Going for the gold

Kelly Morrison

OLYMPIC HOPEFUL. Dreaming about what it would be like to participate in the Olympics, Frances Beater checks out the items associated with the games.

There was no huge medal count for the United States. There was no "Miracle on Ice", but the 1988 Winter Olympics provided America with some outstanding individual achievements.

Going into the games, the Americans were relying heavily on figure skaters Brian Boitano and Debi Thomas. Both have been world champions but never Olympic champions. Boitano won the gold medal by outdueling Canada's Brian Orser. Thomas, who led going into the last night of competition, faltered and finished third behind East Germany's Katerina Witt and Canada's Elizabeth Manley.

As in 1984, the United States hockey team again failed to win a medal. The team lacked defense and discipline and lost three games to the Soviet Union, West Germany and Czechoslovakia while winning only two.

"They were exciting games the way they play; attacking all the time, made the games interesting," stated Steve Bodnar.

Speed skater, Bonnie Blair captured two out of the six medals won by the U.S. One being a gold and the other a bronze. Eric Flain won a silver medal in the men's 1500 meter speed skating race.

"The Olympics are the only true competition left in sports," stated Steve Bauer.

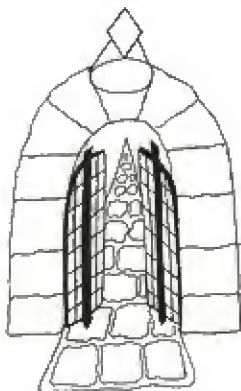

Some terrific performances were turned in by foreign athletes. Purmin Zurbriggen won a gold and a bronze in Alpine Sking. Yvonne van Gennip won three gold medals in Women's Speed Skating.

Always on top

Ann Gillette

COMING UP ROSES. Proudly displaying her gifts, Ann Gillette poses as the Northampton County Junior Miss. Throughout her reign as Junior Miss, Gillette was present at several parades and functions. Gillette loves to dance and plans to continue her education at Temple University.

DOMINATING VICTORS. With 24 students placing, Karensa Woodring admires the DEGA club's trophies won at the District Six Career Development Conference. First place winners included Jennifer Roth, Liz Epling and Jason Dorribach. At states, 15 students placed and six continued on to compete in nationals.

We couldn't settle on being the best. No, certain people had to show off and make NHS even better. We worked, studied and practiced to make 1988 a year worth remembering.

The Distributive Education Club of America proved they were the best by winning the District Six Career Development Conference.

The Chess team became the best by winning the Penn-Jersey Chess League.

"I've waited for this since I started on the Chess team, so, this was my best year ever," stated Eric Hansen.

Better

Ann Gillette showed that the best students come from NHS. She was crowned Northampton County Junior Miss and also won the preliminary award for creative and performing arts.

"I feel I've gotten better as a person. I grew up and realized a lot about the real world," said Gillette.

WE ARE THE CHAMPIONS: Screaming chants of victory, the wrestling team celebrates their District XI Championship title as Tommy Rohn holds his dad's Coach-of-the-Year trophy. The toughest challenge for the Kids was by Nazareth, but the Kids came out on top. Nine wrestlers advanced to regionals, just barely missing the title by one-half a point. Five of the nine wrestlers went onto states.

MAKING HIS MOVE: As Eric Hansen offers advice, John Halko decides if his next move will be beneficial. The Chess club met every Tuesday after school to work on strategies. These strategies were put to good use, since the team finished their season with a 7-0-2 record, won the Penn-Jersey Chess League title, and advanced to national competition.

Another individual that stood out from the crowd was Jim Fromhartz. He went down in basketball history as NHS's leading scorer, exceeding Greg Vogel's 1,174 points in 1971.

"I know I've got many more years to go, but this has definitely been the best thing to ever happen in my life so far," said Fromhartz.

The girls' swim team members pulled off their best efforts to place several swimmers in the District XI Championships. The 200 medley relay team brought home a gold, advancing them to states. Melissa Newhard also placed first and Lori Williams placed second and first.

"My time in the relay was my best at districts, so that's what mattered to me," said

Williams.

Last year the wrestling team shared the conference title. This year they wrestled better to win the EPC title for themselves.

"We started the season with the intent of winning the title and we knew we wouldn't settle for anything less," said Brian Chamberlain.

RECORD BREAKERS Meeting for the first time, Jim Fromhartz shakes former NHS all-time scorer, Greg Vogel's hand. Fromhartz surpassed Vogel's 1,174 points to become the highest scorer in NHS history. The Concrete Kids defeated the Pocono Mountain Cardinals where Vogel is the assistant coach. Fromhartz dominated NHS basketball history by breaking almost all of the existing records.

GOLD MEDAL TIME The 200 medley relay team displays their gold medals won at districts. Missy Newhard, Heather Medel, Lori Williams and Mary Ann Recica placed first with a time of 1:55.9 to qualify for state competition. Lori Williams and Missy Newhard also won medals in the individual competitions, Williams a first and a second, and Newhard a first, qualifying both for states.

A year to remember

"I want them to see we made a difference."

Moving to districts, they dominated to clinch the 1988 District XI Class AAA Tournament championship. Nine of twelve wrestlers placed, advancing them to regionals. At regionals, Rlan Youwakim, Don Suranofsky, Mike Recker, Ed Youwakim and Kevin Smith won medals, advancing them to states.

To top off a better than best season, coach Don Rohn was voted Coach-of-the-Year.

"Without him pushing us to the limit, we wouldn't have become the best," said Kevin Smith.

Another major highlight was the weeklong celebration to rededicate our school, organized by YEA. The program closed with the rededication of the Freedom Shrine and a time capsule dedicated by the Class of 1988.

"I want the class of 2013 to look back on us and see what we accomplished. I want them to see we made a difference," said Kurt DeBellis.

CLOSING THE SCHOOL DAY. The students now begin leaving their center of education and look forward to the rest of the day. Some will participate in extra-curricular activities, yet others will continue to further their knowledge by doing their studies at home.

UP, UP AND AWAY. Members of the Drug and Alcohol Task Force send up balloons to help influence people not to start or take drugs. They used catch phrases to help spread the message of a drug free world to the surrounding community.

The Ampternian Staff would like to give a very special thanks to our advisor, Theresa Gleason, for her support and direction in helping us make the best better.

The proof is right here. NHS is the best—in sports, clubs, and academics. We spend the best times of our lives here, and together we have shown that the best keeps getting better.

*"Have you figured it out yet?"
"What's that?"
"Who the best is."
"No, I think I can figure that out on my own."*
